HIGHEST RICE PRICE RECORDED YESTERDAY

Excess Rainfall And Smuggling Cause Unusual Jumps Here In Three Days

The year's record price for rice in Shanghai was reached yesterday when first class cereal was quoted at $8.40 per picul, being a jump of almost a dollar per picul in three days. Excess rainfall during the last few days and the reported exportation of rice to Japan are the causes of the leap in price.

Peking's action in deciding to restore the old system of assessing tribute rice from the various provinces has also caused a great deal of suspicion among the people. It is believed that the system was restored as a pretext for the Anfu Parliamentarians to export rice to Japan and utilise the proceeds for their campaigns.

A protest was telegraphed to the Tuchuns and Civil Governors of the provinces by the Students' Union at Shanghai yesterday urging an immediate check on the outflow of national food in order to prevent a panic in the Southern provinces. The message alleged that the Anfuites will sell 500,000 piculs to Japan for profit.

All kinds of reports are current that rice is daily being shipped from Shanghai to Japan by political profiteers. A serious charge was made two days ago by an organisation called the Chung Hua Labor Union against the permit department of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, alleging that permits were issued to the profiteers for a certain amount of monetary consideration to export rice to the islands.

Mr. Wang Shu-chung, head of the department, stated yesterday that the accusation is absolutely untrue and he has written to the union giving them two days within which to produce the informer, otherwise legal proceedings will be instituted against the union.

The Bureau of Foreign Affairs has also addressed letters to the local Customs Commissioner and the Customs Superintendent, asking for a thorough investigation of the reports of rice exportation and the alleged use of permits issued by the Bureau.

The story of the permit issuing was published by the local Chinese press on the strength of a report authorised by the Labor Union, which stated the information was gathered from the Hsin Tai Hsin rice shop on Shanhaikwan Road and from employes of rice mills and Japanese dealers.

Boycott Still Holds Strong, Cutting Japan's Trade Here By From 70 To 80 Per Cent

Export Business With China Suffering Heavily In All Lines, Compradores To Japanese Firms In Shanghai Declare

That at present the boycott movement, so far from dying out, is killing from 70 to 80 percent of the Japanese export business to China and is causing a panic among Japanese exporters is the opinion of several compradores of leading local Japanese importers who were interviewed by a reporter of THE CHINA PRESS yesterday. Exact figures, of course, are not available for the present, as the only source of information for this must come with the official commercial report which will make its appearance in August, the end of the present Japanese fiscal season.

Chinese compradores say that the value of goods imported into China from Japan before the strike averaged $40,000,000 a month, but the strike has reduced this to below the $10,000,000 mark. Merchandise such as cotton yarns, machinery, toilet articles, medicine, beer, milk, biscuits, straw hats, socks and stockings, soap, lumber, hides, watches, crockery and rubber articles are completely banned, while a limited amount of business is done in coal, paper, piece goods, toys, matches and stationery.

Yarn Shipments End

In the cotton yarn business alone the effect of the boycott is interesting. Chinese mill owners say that as far as could be ascertained not a single bale of Japanese yarn was shipped to China during the month of June, while before the strike 7,000 bales used to be sent to Shanghai alone every month. The outputs of the local Japanese mills, however, are still purchased by Chinese, but the yarns are only for local consumption.

Two weeks ago, certain Chinese cotton yarn dealers attempted to sell the products of the four Japanese cotton mills in Shanghai to dealers in the interior by substituting their own chops for the Japanese. The matter was thoroughly investigated and the yarns were consigned to the flames and the sellers were unmercifully berated by their colleagues. The present output of the four mills in Shanghai, representing 324,000 spindles, are consumed by the local weaving factories and not a thread goes to any other part of China.

Japanese Are Alarmed

Japanese exporters, factories and newspapers are alarmed at the effectiveness of the present movement, which they were apt to underestimate at the outset. The Shanghai News Agency, 1 Quinsan Road, a Japanese concern, has the following comment on the movement under date of July 15:

"It is a serious mistake on the part of Japanese to belittle the present anti-Japanese boycott movement instituted by Chinese students, merchants and industrial leaders. The awakening of these classes is alarming. The native produce stores established by students in Honan Road and Avenue Joffre are supplying all the common articles of daily use and such a measure is the most effective in pushing native industries.

Outgrowths Of Movement

"Improvement on the sale of woollen and cotton goods, hide and leather goods and other native products is being encouraged and a general educational campaign among laborers has been started. For example, the huge woollen and hide manufacturing plant in Kalgan and the $200,000 umbrella factory in Shanghai are both outgrowths of the boycott and are model factories to compete in the world of industry. Other factories for soap, toothpowder, brushes and stationery are also under plan of establishment.

"The awakening of the Chinese, the high cost of living among Japanese workmen and the increase of import taxations carried out by the new revised tariff rate are three main factors that will check the export business of Japan. Japanese export producers must not underestimate the present movement in China!"

BRITISH WHITE PAPER DISCUSSES COAL PRICES

Statement Explains Reasons For Announcement That Increase Is Required

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—A White Paper has been issued showing the basis on which the 6/- increase in the cost of coal per ton is calculated.

The deficiency in working the coal industry for the twelve months beginning on July 16 is estimated at over £46,000,000. The output is estimated at 217 million tons. Deducting the quantity on which the increased price will not be effective, namely 56 million tons, comprising 18 million tons for use at the collieries, 6 millions for miners' use, and 32 millions sold at open market, prices above the minimum for export and bunkers, there remains 161 millions tons over which the estimated deficiency has to be spread, necessitating an increase in price of 5/9½ or 6/-.

$2,500 ALREADY PLEDGED FOR FOOCHOW HOSPITAL

A.R.C. Chapters At Peking, Hankow And Nanking Reply To Appeal For Cholera Relief

A speedy response to the appeal for funds for a cholera hospital at Foochow has been received by the Central Committee of the American Red Cross from three of the principal chapters in China and $2,500 of the required $10,000 has already been promised.

The replies have come to Mr. W. A. B. Nichols, chairman, from Peking, Nanking and Hankow. The Peking and Hankow chapters have pledged $1,000 each and Nanking has assured the raising of $500. The appeal was wired out on Wednesday. There are twenty-four chapters of the American Red Cross throughout China and it is expected that there will be little trouble in raising the amount needed. Assistance from headquarters of the society in America will be asked if necessary in order to save time, but it is hoped to make the hospital, which will be under sole American Red Cross control, entirely a China enterprise.

WILSON TELLS SENATE PURPOSES OF LEAGUE

Holds America Cannot Refuse Moral Leadership That War Has Thrust Upon Her

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 10.—President Wilson's address to the Senate was mainly devoted to the League of Nations. President Wilson said it was the only hope of mankind. He declared America could not refuse the moral leadership which the war and the conference had offered her. Any government representing the people must, regardless of the cost, assist in utterly destroying the old order of international politics. Statesmen might see difficulties but the people saw none and would brook no denial.

He drew attention to the inevitability of many of the compromises in the treaty and declared that the work of the conference squared with the principles agreed upon as the basis of peace as well as with the possibilities of the international situation.

Wounded Czechs Here Need Entertainment

Some 600 wounded soldiers of the Czecho-Slovak army, after five years of active service in Siberia under the worst possible conditions, are in Shanghai on their way to Trieste.

For five years they have been without recreation, entertainment or even good food.

Representatives of practically every other nation that fought Germany have been entertained here.

Plans are under way to do something for these Czechs who have been bearing the brunt of the fighting for the Allies in Russia and a movement has been started to provide some sort of an entertainment for the men.

Because of their number, money is needed to defray the expenses—to provide an abundance of chow and to secure entertainers. Suggestions as to how the men are to be entertained are desired and liberal subscriptions and a number of ideas are needed.

Mr. W. A. B. Nichols, chairman of the Central Committee, American Red Cross, is in charge of the men during their stay in Shanghai. Subscriptions and suggestions should be sent to him.

Passengers Suffer Through Japanese Quarantine Order

Tenyo Not To Call Here And Many Bookings Cancelled; No Cholera Yet Found

Japan's declaration of Shanghai as an infected port has brought about a flurry of cancellations and readjustments for steamship passengers previously booked to sail within the next few days.

It is announced that the Tenyo Maru, due July 23 Japan bound, will not call at Shanghai owing to the epidemic. In consequence 75 local passengers for Japan ports have had their passages cancelled. In addition the Tenyo was booked to take 50 passengers from here for San Francisco. In respect to these latter, however, the T. K. K. officials have managed to make arrangements for almost all to sail by other lines without much delay.

The Japanese quarantine regulations will allow ships to enter Japanese ports five days after sailing from here, if disease free, and plans have been made so that the Pacific Mail liner Ecuador, leaving tomorrow, will be held up only one day, by reason of the fact that the ship will omit calling at Kobe and will proceed direct to Yokohama, which is four days out.

The Japan-China sailings are announced to continue in accordance with schedule, but will obviously be retarded by the quarantine regulation after their first trips to the islands. The N.Y.K. has five ships sailing be-

The original cost of the coin is less than .4 of a copper, it is claimed.

PEKING IS REASSURED ABOUT SEMENOFF'S ACTS

Not Believed He Is Shaping New State For Himself In Outer Mongolia

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 14.—General Hsu Shu-tsung's preparation for the Mongolian expedition are proceeding rapidly and in spite of reports to the effect that he merely intends to create a force capable of overawing Peking and has no idea of sending it to Mongolia the opinion is gaining ground that the expedition will soon set out for the north.

Inquiries from General Hsu concerning the salt administration in Inner Mongolia lead to the belief in certain Chinese circles that he intends to utilise the salt revenue there, probably as the security for a loan. Kalgan is said to be a scene of great activity owing to the arrival of motor transport and military preparations.

Government At Omsk Believes Semenoff Loyal

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 14.—With reference to General Semenoff's alleged activities in Outer Mongolia, which have been made much of by General Hsu Shu-cheng and Chen Yi, the Chinese Resident at Urga, your correspondent is informed that the careful inquiries of the Koltchak Government at Omsk have not brought out any evidence that Semenoff is either disloyal to his own country or actively engaged in shaping a new state for himself in Outer Mongolia. The Omsk Government regards Semenoff as absolutely loyal to it and entertains no fears as to his activities in Transbaikalia.

The danger in the present Mongolian situation has been created by Little Hsu, Chen Yi and their military backers for purposes which may be interpreted in many ways, but which have not as yet been revealed clearly. In any case the Outer Mongolians, from duke to bandit, are much alarmed over the prospect of seeing a Chinese expeditionary force in their country. They say that the despatch of such a force is contrary to the Sino-Russo-Mongolian treaty and that Chinese troops arriving in Outer Mongolia in violation of the treaty will do more harm than good there. All that the Mongolians ask of the Chinese is to be let alone by them; they say they can manage their own affairs perfectly well and that not even Semenoff has terrors for them. His entry into their territory is doubtful, but, if he does come, they have men enough, arms enough and horses enough to make things very uncomfortable for him, operating, as he will have to do, over a long and poorly protected line of communications.

Your correspondent understands, furthermore, that the Omsk Government and the Russian Legation in Peking are keeping a close watch on the movements of Hsu Shu-cheng's forces in Mongolia and that the Russian Legation will not permit the entry of Hsu's men into Outer Mongolian territory without at least making a protest against it. Chinese military activity on a large scale in Outer Mongolia will violate the terms of the treaty with Russia exactly as it does those of the treaty with Outer Mongolia; and the Russians, ever keen guardians of their interests in Mongolia, will not let such action on the part of China's militarists pass by unnoticed.

Up to the present it does not appear that Chinese troops have crossed into Mongolian territory in large numbers but despatches from Urga state that one motor-car containing five soldiers arrived there last week and that nine more, carrying a total of 50 men, were expected there any day. These men might, however, be looked upon as a guard for the protection of Chen Yi and his fellow officials; and no protest will be made to the Foreign Office here unless this number is exceeded.

SEMENOFF TO ENFORCE CURRENCY REGULATIONS

All Passengers To Manchuria Are Being Searched On Trains By Cossacks

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, July 16.—Reuter's correspondent is reliably informed that Ataman Semenoff has wired to General Horvat that, owing to the continual violation of the law prohibiting each passenger travelling from Russia abroad to carry a sum exceeding 2,500 roubles without a special permit and also forbidding the export of gold and platinum, he has been forced to order his cossacks to examine passengers on the trains bound to Manchuria at Dauria station in the presence of an agent of the Customs.

In three days the search has resulted in the discovery of over 12 million roubles in Romanoff and big Kerensky notes, chiefly belonging to Chinese passengers, and 3 poods of gold. It appears that these moneydealers are continually buying notes in Siberia and then selling them on the Manchurian market, by that largely contributing to the fall of Siberian exchange. The confiscated funds have been handed over to the Customs at Manchuria station.

Ataman Semenoff has applied to the Commander-in-Chief requesting energetic measures to oppose the evil speculation saying:

"I consider it necessary for the Government to apply to the Chinese Government requesting it to order its subjects to follow the regulations existing in Russia for the transfer of money only through banks."

APPEAL TO AID FRANCE MADE BY LLOYD GEORGE

Statement Issued On Behalf Of British Committee Of French Red Cross

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—On the occasion of the French national festival on July 14, Mr. Lloyd George has issued a warm appeal on behalf of the British Committee of the French Red Cross.

He says that during four years of war we have celebrated France's day, "by sending our offerings through the British Committee of the French Red Cross in homage to the superb tenacity with which France faced her terrible invader and, robbed of her richest territory, held the line at so cruel cost till we could come in our full strength to her aid. Her lands have been gloriously restored to her by our common effort and common sacrifice but the British committee cannot leave its noble work unfinished.

"It has undertaken the care of over five hundred towns and villages in the most devastated regions of France. It is helping those who lost their all in the hard struggle to win back their heritage and it needs our continued and whole-hearted support. In gratitude for our own immunity from invasion and its lasting scars, I commend this beneficent cause to the most generous remembrance of Britons the world over."

FINANCING OF LEGATION AT PEKING EXPLAINED

Reported Protest Concerning Payment By Russian Officials Denied

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 14.—Referring to the case of the Chinese merchants who were robbed of nearly seven million roubles by Semenoff's men last Winter and the resulting policy of the Chinese Government to deduct this amount from the next instalment of the Boxer indemnity due to Russia, it is learned that recent newspaper comment on this case, and more particularly that comment which states that "the Russian Legation needs the money" and has therefore protested the action of the Chinese Government, is incorrect.

Neither the Russian Legation in Peking nor any of the Russian diplomatic missions and consulates in the Far East are financed with funds from the Boxer Indemnity. The Chinese Government, acting on the principle that it owes the usual instalments of the Boxer indemnity to Russia regardless of the fact that there is no recognised government in that country has made a practice, ever since the overthrow of the Romanoffs, of paying the amount due on the Boxer indemnity into the Russo-Asiatic Bank at Peking, where it is to be held until a firm Russian Government is established and recognised by China. The Russo-Asiatic Bank will then be requested by the Chinese Government to deliver the money to the newly recognised Russian Government.

The Russian Legation here, as well as the other diplomatic and consular offices representing Russia in the Far East, is financed by the Russo-Asiatic Bank, which advances the necessary funds for their upkeep on its own responsibility. These advances have nothing whatever to do with the Boxer indemnity payments, for which the bank is responsible to the Chinese Government alone.

Peking'sPremiershipProblem Still Far From Solution

President Hsu's Choice For Post, Chow Shu-mou, Opposed By Anfuites Who Lack Suitable Man

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 14.—Acting Premier Kung Hsin-chan had an audience with the President on Saturday, when his second term as temporary head of the Cabinet expired, and explained to Hsu Hsi-chang his inability to manage the affairs of the nation at this critical period. In view of this state of affairs, which was a result partly of the number of vacancies in the Cabinet and partly of his lack of authority to take up matters of state and put them through, Kung asked the President to nominate a permanent premier without further delay. Failing this, Kung said that he would be obliged to resign, as his position was too difficult for him to hold much longer.

The President urged Kung to be patient for a little longer, as he hoped to be able to find a satisfactory premier soon. If, however, it should prove impossible to come to a satisfactory agreement with the Anfu party in regard to the premiership, the President said that he had made up his mind to resign with Kung and the rest of the acting Cabinet.

There are daily meetings at the President's residence for discussion of the Cabinet situation, and the President, supported by Tuan Chi-jui and many of the country's prominent officials and politicians, is exerting himself to the utmost to arrange with the Anfu club for the appointment of Chou Shu-mou, whom he regards as the only satisfactory candidate for the premiership. There have been no definite results from these efforts as yet, the Anfu party holding out firmly against Chou's appointment; but now, as before, time is all in favor of Hsu Hsi-chang and his party. If the constitutionalists behind Hsu can only hold out and prevent the Anfuites from slipping in a plausible, pliable man as premier, public support will, it is felt here, grow up around Hsu's policies and wear down the Anfu Party and its military friends.

Opposition To Chou

As regards Chou Shu-mou, the stand of the Anfu party is now that Chou has been out of official life too long to understand either the needs of the country or the laws by which it is governed. Thus, while professing to entertain no personal or political prejudices against Chou, the Anfu men express the fear that his premiership will result in many blunders in dealing with the nation's problems, and more particularly with those problems which concern the unity of China. Hence the Anfu Club declares that it cannot accept Chou as premier unless he is prepared to adhere strictly to the Anfu program and settle all outstanding difficulties in accordance with the terms of the constitution as interpreted for him by the Anfu leaders.

Realising only too well that Chou Shu-mou will not accept its terms, and having failed in its attempt to persuade General Tuan Chi-jui to undertake the formation of the Cabinet, the Anfu Club has once more put forward Chu Shen, the present Minister of Justice, in pursuance of its policy of always having a candidate before the public. To this proposal President Hsu is quoted as replying that he is willing to accept Chu Shen as premier provided that the Anfu Club can prove to him that it is constitutional for Parliament to nominate the premier. The President says that he understands, from his study of the constitution, that the nomination of a premier lies with the President, whereas the ratification of the appointment lies with Parliament.

No Solution In Sight

Thus the cabinet situation is tied up as much as it ever was, the President being unable to make the Anfu Club see the acceptability of his candidate, and the Anfu men not having within their ranks a man acceptable to the President and useful to themselves as the head of a new cabinet. The most important feature of the past few days has been the ever increasing support given to the President by Tuan Chi-jui, until recently the undisputed head of the military party. Tuan's support, if maintained, is certain to strengthen Hsu's hand and, at the same time, to create a split in the ranks of the militarists which will be of value to the entire country.

Causes for General Tuan's adoption of a more moderate policy are not hard to find. For several months past there has been a rift in the lute of military harmony, and Tuan and Little Hsu have found many points upon which they could not agree. This led to the gradual formation of two groups in the military party, moderates headed by Tuan Chi-jui and the reactionary pro-Japanese rallying to the leadership of Hsu Shu-cheng. Little Hsu's group has gained in strength during the past month or two and indications all point to the fact that it is Hsu, and not Tuan, who is now the actual head of the military clique in the North. Hsu still finds Tuan's name and prestige useful, but it is he who in reality frames the military policy and puts it through under the protection of Tuan's name.

Assumes New Role

Tuan, on the other hand, has not failed to see that he is losing ground with the militarists and that the time will soon come when Little Hsu will be able to come out in the open on his own account and do without the prestige that Tuan can now lend to his plans. When this time comes Tuan will be out of the running unless he can make himself popular in another direction. Hence the role of soldier, moderate and friend of the people appeals to Tuan at the present time; and there is no doubt that Tuan in this role will be of great assistance to the President.

The Anfu Club is going ahead steadily with its plans for propaganda, its activity along these lines having been increased considerably of late in view of the probability of a general parliamentary election after the North and the South have been reunited. In Tsinanfu, where Anfu influence has been none too great, the club is now about to open three vernacular newspapers with the knowledge, approval and support of its Japanese friends. The first of these newspapers is now almost organised and will shortly appear under the name of the Chang Yen Pao, while the other two, the Hai Tai Hsin Wen Pao and the Chi Lu Pao have not got beyond the first steps of organisation. They are expected to appear some time this coming fall.

Peking Urged To Act

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 14.—The Shantung Tuchun, voicing the opinions of other Tuchuns, has telegraphed to the President urging that a new Cabinet should be appointed without further delay. He points out that, while Mr. Tien Wen-lieh has much support from the Peiyang Party, Mr. Chou Shou-mou possesses the confidence of the people to a greater extent. Mr. Chou should be the foundation of the new Cabinet.

The choice lies between the two men, in the opinion of the Tuchun of Shantung, and recent events, he contends, have shown that the Anfu Club, which desired a monopoly in appointing the Cabinet, is not as strong as it thought.

PEKING MOVES TO CHECK DISTURBANCE IN KIRIN

Meng En-yuan Is Instructed To Pacify Troops And Then Proceed To Capital

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 16.—General Chang Chow-hsung left for Changchun yesterday evening as a peace maker, his main object being to arrange with Pao Kwei-ching, incoming Tuchun of Kirin, for General Kao Shih-pin to continue as commandant of the troops on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Meng En-yuan Is Ordered To Suppress Uprisings

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 14.—The Peking Government has telegraphed to Tuchun Meng En-yuan at Kirin, urging him once more to suppress any uprising among the Kirin troops who object to his transfer to Peking and then to proceed to the capital at once. The Government's message to Meng says that it learns that the Kirin soldiery have left their stations throughout the province and concentrated at Harbin and Changchun to demonstrate, by force if necessary, against Meng's transfer. Meng is instructed to inform these soldiers that his recall to Peking is not in the nature of a demotion and that his post in the capital will be an important one. The Government trusts that the troops will become reconciled to Meng's departure when they learn the true reason for it.

Wires Civil Governor

To Civil Governor Kuo of Kirin the Government has telegraphed as follows: "Your efforts to pacify the troops in your province are much appreciated but it does not yet appear that you have met with great success in this direction. Hence you are requested to continue your endeavors to calm the soldiery and settle the difficulties resulting from General Meng's transfer. As for your resignation, the Government cannot dispense with your services at this time, when your experience as Chinese Director-General of the Chinese Eastern Railway is of great value to the country. You are accordingly requested to remain at your post, where your work is duly appreciated."

All reports from Kirin indicate that the independence movement there is bound to end in failure. It was started by Kao Shih-pin, Tuchun Meng's nephew, and is opposed by the people, as well as by most of the soldiery. The only troops who are heart and soul behind the movement are the men of Kao's own division and it is believed that these men will lose their interest in it as soon as they realise that they are outnumbered. General Chang Tso-lin has, furthermore, sent word to Peking that he wants General Kao dismissed and replaced by Pei Chi-hsun, an officer friendly to himself. General Chang describes Kao's independence movement in Kirin as a serious threat to the integrity of the country and announces that he will take strong military action against Kao unless the Central Government finds itself able to settle the question directly from Peking.

Peking Sends Mediator

A Government investigator is to proceed from here to Kirin this week in an attempt to bring about an amicable settlement of the present difficulties there. Chao Erh-san, the original appointee for this task, being unable to make the journey, the Government has now named General Chang Hsi-luan as investigator and mediator, with full power to make such a settlement as he may deem satisfactory. General Chang's only instructions are to hasten to Kirin and smooth things over there with all possible despatch.

DISTRICT OF HUCHOW HARD HIT BY FLOODS

Eighty Percent Of Rice Crop Over Vast Area Said To Be Destroyed

(China Press Correspondence)

Huchow, Chekiang, July 15.—This is the wettest season this part of China has experienced for eight years. A rainy Spring followed by the last four weeks of almost continuous rain has made the entire plain of Northern Chekiang virtually a lake, with islands of slightly higher land appearing here and there.

The farmers worked valiantly day and night building higher their embankments to keep out the encroaching canals, but in the greater number of places with no avail. Often when they were sure of having successfully baffled their persistent enemy, all at once the flood would crumble down their toilsomely built dikes and in a few minutes their fields would be a foot or several feet deep in water. Back from the canals, near the hills, much of the crops are unharmed, but it may be safely said that in the level fields bordering the canals all crops are ruined. This condition prevails from the Great Lake southward for at least twenty miles. In this territory, comprising probably more that 250,000 square miles, it is estimated that 80 percent of the rice crop is ruined. As the season is so far advanced that a second crop cannot be planted, even were the floods to subside immediately, the farmers will not only suffer a great financial loss but in many cases will find it hard to pull through the year.

In the city of Huchow, the flood covered many of the streets, especially those along the water front, to the depth of from two to four feet. Various reports are circulating of lives being lost; stories of women with bound feet falling into the water and drowning, etc., but none of these are authenticated. The Methodist Compound for nearly one day was submerged, and the compound wall, being undermined, fell in various places. The North Gate suburb was buried in the flood, so that boats easily passed in and out of the gate which is ordinarily devoted only to pedestrian uses.

Lansing Interviewed On Eve Of Departure

American Secretary Of State Says Mexican Question Was Not Touched At Paris

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, July 12.—Mr. Lansing, in a farewell interview to correspondents, amplified his statements. When it was suggested that his statement appeared pessimistic, he said, "It was nothing short of plain co-operation. Looking the situation squarely in the face of the whole world, nothing better could have been done than was done." He added that he believed that the biggest questions, except the Adriatic problem, were settled, and the last named, he said, "now seems near settlement."

Mr. Lansing's chief reason for going home is to reorganise the State Department, including the creation of a Bureau of International Commissions which he admitted in time might necessitate a new Cabinet post.

Mr. Lansing characterised the reports relative to intervention in Mexico as "made of whole cloth." He added that the Mexican question was never discussed in Paris. He had had no word concerning intervention from Washington. Mr. Lansing sails for the United States on the s.s. Rotterdam, leaving Brest tomorrow.

China Political Notes From Chinese Press

The Government has decided to organise a company for the operation of the sequestrated enemy vessels and appoint Admiral Sah Cheng-ping to be its director. The report that some of the bigger ships have been sold to foreign concerns is flatly denied. The administration of the company, however, is the subject of a heated dispute between the Ministry of the Navy and the Ministry of Communications.

General Hsu Shu-cheng has requested the Ministry of Communications to order the Peking-Mukden and Peking-Suiyuan Railways to hold 150 cars ready for his expedition.

Both the Presidential Office and the Cabinet denied the report that the Anfu Club will nominate General Tuan Chi-jui to be the Northern chief peace delegate.

Although shops have opened in Canton and the light system has been restored, people are still excited. Few pedestrians are seen in the streets and very little business is transacted. The price of foodstuff has been raised considerably. The price of rice has risen to $16 or $17 per picul. The laboring classes are suffering pitifully. If no relief is given immediately, some serious developments are feared. Acting Governor Chang Ching-fang has resigned. No decision has been made as to his successor.

The $30,000,000 worth of arms purchased by the War Participation Bureau from the Italians will be held up by Tuchun Chang Tso-lin of Fengtien when they arrive in Chinwangtao in a few days. General Chang has demanded the possession of the permit so that he can make use of the shipment freely.

Mr. Tsai Yuan-pei, Chancellor of the Government University in Peking, has telegraphed that he would arrive in Peking on July 26.

Filipinos Beat 15th Infantry In Pitchers' Battle, Score 2-1; Series Starting Tomorrow

Visiting Clubs Play Great Ball, Manila Nine Getting The Break; British Consul To Pitch First Ball Tomorrow

The 4th Philippine Infantry defeated the 15th Infantry of Tientsin yesterday by the score of 2-1.

But it was neither the Filipino victory nor the score that was impressive. It was the brand of ball staged by the players of both clubs that caught on.

Yesterday's game augurs well for the series that opens tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the British Women's Work Association and the American School fund.

There will be one or two features attending the opening, too. Mr. J. W. Jamieson, Consul-General for Great Britain, will throw the first ball after he is ushered to the pitcher's box by the American Consul-General, Mr. Thomas Sammons. Admiral W. L. Rodgers and members of his staff will be present and will occupy reserved seats in the main stand with Messrs. Jamieson and Sammons. A band will be on hand half an hour before the game starts and is to play between the innings. The stands are to be decorated. Everything is ready for the opening.

The management is preparing to handle a big crowd and it is all because both the Filipinos and the infantrymen from Tientsin yesterday battled through nine baseball innings and played ball every minute. The visiting teams made a hit and local devotees of the American national game are on edge to see Shanghai and the Navy clubs in action against them. Shanghai plays the Tientsin team and the Navy nine books up with the Manila crew tomorrow afternoon.

'Twas Truly A Pitching Duel

Yesterday's game was a pitchers' battle with the Filipinos getting a couple of breaks in the first inning that saw them through to the win. Meyers an American, hurled for the Philippine outfit and Gooslaw, who twirled for the 15th, pitched every bit as good ball as the husky moundman from Manila. Meyers had a bit more stuff on the ball and was able to keep himself above water in three of the four innings that saw the lead-off man for the Tientsin nine reach first base. Gooslaw's error in the first let two runs in, the only Philippine tallies. The 15th hurler let Steil's hard-hit grounder sail through him and Lorenzo and Ylanan scurried across the plate.

Snappy work by the Filipino infielders helped Meyers not a little, a brilliant double play in the ninth, stemming the final offensive staged by the Gibbens gang.

Owens had led off in the ninth with a clean single but was forced when Nunns hit to Gooslaw. Drinkard had hit safely twice in three trips to the plate yet he was yanked to allow a pinch hitter, Ashworth, make or break the game.

Ashworth hit a fast one to Ylanan, Ylanan made a beautiful stop and a perfect peg to Colixto who dashed over to cover the bag. The latter shot the ball to DeChaves for the rattling double.

4th Infantry Gets Jump

The Philippine team got the jump. Lorenzo busted the first ball pitched for a clean single to left. Ylanan was passed and the fans began to murmur that Gooslaw had not warmed up sufficiently. Both men moved along on a passed ball bringing Lieut. Bobby Steil up. Steil fouled two attempting to squeeze and with the hit-and-run on, crashed one through Gooslaw. Both runners scored for Ylanan had started with the pitch.

Gooslaw then settled down. Meyers rolling to Maguire, Montgomery fanning and De Manzana going out. Buckley to Maguire.

Two flies to Ylanan and Nunns' high foul to Drinkard brought the Filipinos back in.

De Chaves hit one through Gooslaw. Gibbens dashed over, made a nice stop and then a wild throw, De Chaves landing on first. The latter was forced as Gonzales rolled to Dupris and Colixto fanned after Gonzales stole. Gooslaw threw out Lorenzo at first.

Second Is Some Session

The fans got action in the second inning. Drinkard leaned on one for the first single off Meyers and promptly stole second, Colixto preventing any extension by his great stab of Montgomery's wild peg to the sack.

White rolled out to DeChaves, Drinkard going to third on the death. Attempting to stem the squeeze, DeChaves rushed in on the first ball pitched to Buckley. DeChaves held Drinkard on third but dropped the ball after tagging Buckley as the Tientsin third-sacker was sailing for first in high.

Now then Buckley stole second. Again DeChaves came in on the pitch, grabbed Dupris' roller, glanced at Drinkard and shot the ball to Ylanan, who covered the bag. Drinkard rushed for the plate as DeChaves let go of the pill and Ylanan's brains rushed to his feet. He threw to Colixto to get Buckley off while Drinkard was tearing for home, the Tientsin catcher easily beating Colixto's return.

Meyers took matters into his own hands and Maguire missed three.

Teams Settle Down

Both pitchers grew stronger as the game wore on, Meyers having excellent control of his sharp-breaking out and Gooslaw working his fast one effectively.

There were one or two flurries. De Manzana dropped Owens' fly in the third and Drinkard singled to start the seventh. Both were stranded on the sacks, Drinkard watching two of his pals strike out. Maguire landed on Colixto's error in the eighth and was caught attempting to steal when Montgomery made a perfect peg to Ylanan.

The Philippine catcher, Montgomery, singled in the third and got as far as second base when White misjudged the ball. White did the same stunt for Ylanan in the eighth and then caught Ylanan when the latter started for third at the instant White grabbed Steil's high fly. Montgomery landed again in the ninth but was forced.

Both teams looked good. They have fast infields and nice outer defenses. The Philippine team has the edge on pitching for the series as Bobby Steil carries Birtulpo, Masias and Meyers, all real moundmen.

THE FOURTH IN SHENSI

(China Press Correspondence)

Sianfu, Shensi, July 5.—Though only a handful of Americans here, we tried our best to commemorate the signing of that famous and precious document which means so much to all loyal Americans, the Declaration of Independence. A parade had been planned on the large compound for the morning, but the rain made it impossible. After 12 o'clock the sun shone brightly and our afternoon exercises were allowed to be held. All the British friends in the city came, and some neutrals. After refreshments the Declaration of Independence was read by one of the Americans.

Singing of patriotic hymns, both American and British, was also indulged in.

Chinese Don't Care About Treaty

It does not seem that the Chinese up around here know anything about the signing of the Peace Treaty at Paris. One does not hear of it, even from intimate Chinese friends, and the Chinese flags have not been visible at all, except at the mission-stations, where both Chinese and Allied flags were flown. Why this absence of flags on the part of the officials, at least, is easily conjectured. The boycott movement has spread here too, the merchants having pledged to not replenish their stocks with Japanese goods after the present are exhausted. No student demonstrations were permitted by the Tuchun on penalty of death, though he is supposed to be very anti-Japanese. He seems to hold the situation here pretty well.

Last Sunday some of the Fengtien troops and the Tuchun's had a clash at Hsienlang, but it did not amount to much. The latter seem to be very much irritated over something, but we believe that the former are better fighters. But for this little scrap it seems to be fairly peaceful around here.

Passengers Suffer Through Japanese Quarantine Order

tween now and the 25th and the O.E.K. one.

Despite the reports from Japanese sources that Japanese travelling from Shanghai have been found to be suffering from cholera no traces of the genuine cholera bacillus have yet been found among victims of the epidemic here, according to announcement by the Health Department yesterday.

The choleraic diarrhoea cases are on the increase, however, more sufferers coming into the hospitals every day and physicians are of opinion that there is little chance of the epidemic slackening for the present.

Acupuncturers Told To Quit

No more acupuncture will be practised in the Shanghai City, according to a proclamation issued yesterday by the Chief of Police of Nantao, Mr. Hsu Kuo-liang. Since the epidemic of choleraic diarrhoea broke out the barbers have done a flourishing business with their needles and according to the declarations of the medical men of the district they have greatly lessened the chances of cures. In view of which the Chief of Police ordered the practice prohibited. The proclamation states that any barbers found engaged in the business will be severely dealt with.

HOW TO KEEP BABY WELL IN SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to infants and young children. The complaints of this season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often the little one is beyond aid almost before the parents realize he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly she should have means at hand for their immediate treatment.

No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy. These pleasant-tasting little Tablets regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. They are a remedy for simple fever, indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea and worms. They make teething easy, promote healthy appetite, restful sleep and regular development.

Sold by chemists, or sent post free at 60 cents the vial by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Certain-teed

Paints and Varnishes

We are ready to supply Owners, Builders and Painters with any quantity of our complete line of Certain-teed paints and varnishes, which we have recently put in stock.

Painting is Insurance

A well-known authority in Kansas has stated that "the annual loss through lack of painting is greater than the loss through fire." Nearly every owner will insure his home against fire, but why not insure your property against decay and deterioration by painting with Certain-teed paints? Looking at the matter purely from a business point of view, you will find it will pay you to keep your property in good running order by painting, whenever necessary, with high-grade paints like Certain-teed.

Outside Paint

Let us, at this time, call your particular attention to Certain-teed Barn, Bridge and Roof Paint, which comes in three shades—Slate Color, Red, and Moss Green. Red is the most popular shade for Barns, Silos, Sheds and Granaries; Moss Green makes an ideal color for painting your roofs; either Slate color or Red may be used for the painting of small bridges and wood or metal fences.

Write, call or phone for color cards, prices and further information.

PEASANTS RISE TO STEM BOLSHEVIKI IN SIBERIA

Capture By Radicals Of Perm And Kungur Forces Troops Back Thirty Versts

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 15.—A telegram from Omsk, dated July 11, gives the following summary of the situation on the different anti-Bolshevist fronts up to July 5:—

The Bolshevist advance which resulted in the capture by them of Perm and Kungur compelled the Siberian troops to take up positions thirty versts eastward of those centers.

The population of the Krasnoufimsk district, which lies between the new positions and the advancing Bolshevists, have risen in arms to defend their homes. In Perm the workmen of the Motovilihine works, on their own initiative, damaged the bridge over the River Kama so as to stem the Bolshevist advance.

On the Samara-Zlatoust railway, the Siberian troops have taken up the line Emav—Ustkatal, 120 versts southwest of Zlatoust, while south of the railway they are from forty to fifty versts eastward of the River Belaya.

In the Ural region, the Cossacks are pressing the enemy back in the direction of Samara and Nikolaevsk.

Following the capture of Tsaritsin, General Denikin's troops are now fighting twenty versts northwest of Kamyshine. Continuing to advance in the direction of Balashev and Voronej, they are already tackling the Bolshevists ninety versts southeast of Kursk, while further west they have captured Bogoduhov and are fighting fifty versts northeast of Poltava. In the south, after the capture of Ekaterinoslav, General Denikin gained possession of Theodosia, in the Crimea.

Further information leaking through from regions under the Bolshevist yoke reports more and more frequent anti-Bolshevist outbreaks and risings among workmen on railways and in factories. Peasant risings have also become frequent, especially since the last attempt of the soviets to seize all available foodstuffs, leaving the peasants only what was immediately necessary to assure the next crop.

All these risings are suppressed by the Bolshevists with barbaric cruelty, which is characteristic of them. The forcibly mobilised red guards are maintained in the ranks by special punitive detachments of "conscious" communists, a small minority. Nevertheless, cases of desertion comprise fifty percent of the men mobilised under compulsion. Transport conditions are increasingly serious, even far in the rear of the Red armies all passenger traffic is prohibited, all available means being used for the conveyance of troops and supplies. The large number of locomotives and wagons out of repair to be found on every side track speak eloquently of the growing difficulties that the Bolsheviks have to face in this matter, repairs having long ago been reduced to the minimum necessary for immediate needs.

French Golfer Wins Inter-Allied Title

Mashio Takes Championship At Versailles After Elimination Of British And Americans

(American Press Wireless)

Paris, July 12.—M. Arnaud Mashio (France) at La Boulto links, Versailles, won the Allied individual gold championship in the Inter-Allied games today, defeating M. Dauge, (France) in the final by five up and four to play. M. Arnaud Mashio once won the English Open Championship. All the American and British contestants in the Inter-Allied Golf Championship were eliminated in the third round of play, the semi-finals being contested solely by Frenchmen. The final events of the Inter-Allied games and rowing regatta on the Seine will be held on July 17 and 18, with representatives of ten countries entered. America, Australia, Switzerland, Canada, England, France, Belgium, Italy, Portugal and Czecho-Slovakia have entered crews for the eight oar race.

Banvards Open Next Week

The Banvard Musical Comedy Company will open a three days' engagement at the Olympic Theater Thursday July 24. The opening performance is announced as a double bill of vaudeville and musical comedy. The individual members of the company will each contribute to the vaudeville program, the acts including the work of Horley and Franklin, West and Boyd, Pearl Jardinere, Myrtle Dingwall, Smith and Ellsworth, Robert Ryles and Art Cody, with the Banvard Girls assisting.

The musical comedy is announced as containing new song hits and a wealth of comedy. It is called "The Tourists."

WEEKLY SILVER REPORT

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, July 10.—Samuel Montagu's weekly Silver Report states:

The tendency of the market at the beginning of the week was upward owing to a special order and the inclination to hold up supplies but, unless purchases for the Raj can be made permanently on the higher level, the price is not justified.

The Indian currency problem is still the principal factor in the market. China has bought substantially but seems for the moment to have shot its bolt. The feature of the week has been the premium on the price for forward delivery, which is now a farthing above the price for cash delivery.

HONGKONG SHIP FUND EXPENDITURE PLANNED

Money Derived From Vessels To Be Employed In Building Work

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, July 17.—The Governor today made a statement in the Legislative Council that, through the operation of the local shipping control scheme, a considerable sum of money has been realised which represents profits derived from ships owned by British subjects of the British and Chinese races respectively.

It is proposed to use the money for the direct benefit of the local British and Chinese communities. The Secretary of State has authorised the expenditure of a portion of the money for the erection of housing accommodation of persons of the British race, it being felt that the money can be devoted to no better use than in endeavoring to mitigate the housing difficulty.

It is proposed to erect flats for married men and an hotel, both for married men and bachelors. The proposed site is the Salisbury and Nathan roads in Kowloon and the estimated expenditure will be $1,500,000.

Seen From The Roof

More will be heard from Buckley, the Tientsin third sacker, before the series is over.

* * *

The Filipinos just cluster around the ball. There were three men on every play yesterday. Bobby Steil has taught his ex-Scouts how to back up another player.

* * *

Meyers, Montgomery and Dick Barnes of the Manila team and the entire 15th Infantry delegation are about the same size as the men that made up the first American Expeditionary Forces.

* * *

Meyers is an inch or two over six feet and weighs about over 14 stone. And his team mates call him "Babe."

* * *

Mr. White daintily misjudged two in left.

* * *

When Gonzales started after Nunna' high fly in the third, the rest of the Manila players threw away their gloves and started for the bench. Owens was on second, too.

* * *

General Lu's band was there.

* * *

Colixto gets the ball away even faster than the well-known Mr. Parker.

* * *

Lorenzo, the Manila lead-off man, has several movements all his own at the bat. The grandstand dubbed him "the acrobat."

* * *

That last double play sent the fans home talking about "seeing those birds again."

* * *

Ylanan was injured by a collision with Buckley in the eighth and was given a good hand by the crowd when he resumed play.

* * *

Bobby Steil is a great little field captain. He keeps the game moving every minute.

* * *

The two teams dashed on and off the field in big-league fashion. All same "Baseball Today" signs on the trolleys.

* * *

It was the first regular ball game for some moons. A band, peanuts and a couple of teams made up the combine.

* * *

The American slang dispensed by the Filipinos brought several laughs. DeManzana's "attaboy" and "old kid" came with every breeze from right field.

* * *

Malalis, coaching on third, was content with "abla, abla."

* * *

Umpires Chapman and Logan came in for all sorts of praise, from both the fans and the players.

* * *

The Filipinos were inconsistent in just one item. They complained of the heat.

* * *

The Tientsin huskies are real doughboys.

* * *

Tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock Mr. Jamieson, the British Consul-General, will officially open the series.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Egg Drying Machinery

The Milk Drying Machinery Co., of Chicago, Ill., U. S. A., who have sold a number of egg-drying machines throughout China, will open an office and wareroom in Shanghai in the near future, where both the single and the double unit machines will be kept in stock, which will insure immediate deliveries.

There will also be kept on hand furnaces, pumps and all extra parts which may be needed to repair worn or damaged sections of the machinery.

The office will be in charge of Mr. A. F. Doyle, of Chicago. A uniform c. i. f. price will be quoted to all importing firms, and to our special representative, through which channels our machines will be sold.

The erection of the machines will be superintended by Messrs. B. J. Smith, P. Garretson and C. E. Howser, who have been overseeing this work in China for the past three years.

We are registering our five letters patent with the several American consulates in China. These patents fully cover our method and process and all infringements will be vigorously prosecuted, as will the users of the product made on any machines that infringe our patents.

Owners of egg factories desiring to install our machines for use early next season are advised to place their orders as soon as possible, as considerable delay in transportation and installation cannot be avoided.

Small Broadway Plot Sells For Five Million

Phenomenal Rise In New York Land Values Shown By Recent Deal

New York, June 14.—The largest sale of Times Square property in recent years was completed yesterday, when Vincent Astor closed a contract with Robert E. Simon for the sale of the property known as the Putnam-Shanley Building and Westover Court, on the west side of Broadway between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets.

The plot, which has a frontage of 200 feet 10 inches on Broadway, is improved with a six-story fireproof building of terra cotta. It is fully leased until 1924, and yields a large annual rental. Adjoining it in the rear, fronting on Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets, are ten five-story buildings. They were originally private houses, but several years ago were remodelled into stores and apartments by the owner and named Westover Court. These buildings are also fully leased.

This is one of the largest single holdings on Manhattan Island. It contains 41,575 square feet. The dimensions are 200.10 feet on Broadway, and 207 feet on Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets. The entire property has an annual income of $320,000. Robert E. Simon, who heads the syndicate which has contracted to purchase the property, said yesterday:

"It is contemplated erecting a large moving picture theater on the street plottage of the property, provided possession can be had of that portion. Under the agreement, the purchaser is not compelled to take the property if such possession is not secured. This plot, in my opinion, is situated in what is probably the busiest spot in the world. It is undoubtedly one of the most prominent locations in the city."

Mr. Simon refused to discuss the price paid for the property, but a member of the firm of L. J. Phillips and Co., who negotiated the transaction, said it had been on the market at $5,000,000. The Putnam building was assessed by the city for taxation purposes in 1918 at about $2,550,000. Harris and Vaughn were associated as brokers in the sale.

The entire property has been in the Astor family for three generations, and was acquired by Vincent Astor upon the death of his father, Colonel John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster. It was probably part of the old Long Acre Farm.

The name Putnam was derived from a historic association. It was at this spot that General George Washington and General Isaac Putnam met on September 15, 1766, to discuss the movement of the American army the day before the Battle of Harlem.

The transaction is typical of the rapid increase of reality values in and about Times Square. The first jump in values took place in 1905, when The New York Times moved from its old home in Printing House Square to Times Square. The subway had only been in operation a few months, but the growth of Times Square may be considered as dating from the opening of the tall building at its southern end.

Since that date the assessed value of real estate in and around the Square, influenced of course by its location and by the nature of its improvements, has increased in value from 50 to 250 percent. The following tabulation, showing the assessed value of important land and buildings in the Times Square district in 1905 and in 1918, illustrates the great advances in the last fourteen years.

Two of the smallest parcels in Times Square strikingly illustrate this rise in value. One is the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Forty-third Street, long occupied by Dowling's Cafe. It has a frontage of only 20.5 feet in the square, but runs back 80 feet in the street and has a rear depth of 60 feet. Michael Dowling bought the parcel in 1911 for $375,000, an average of $154 a square foot, a record for value per square foot in the Square. On land alone, the assessment on this corner is now $300,000, an increase of 161 percent over the 1905 assessment of $115,000.

The southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, although only 40 by 80 feet, brought $450,000 in February, 1917, when Joseph P. Day sold it at public auction. He declared he was giving it away at the price, predicting that Sol Bloom, who purchased it, would have no trouble reselling at a handsome profit. The price averaged about $139 a square foot, and Mr. Day's prediction came true within a few weeks, when Mr. Bloom sold the corner to the United Cigar Stores Company for a price which was said to equal, at least, the record figure of $154 a square foot established by the Dowling corner.

In view of the present sale of the Astor property and renewed activity in the realty market, it is interesting to recall that the Broadway block between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, then running through to Sixth Avenue, was sold at auction in 1853, the Forty-second Street corner bringing $5,075 and the adjoining Forty-second Street lot, 25 by 100 feet, bringing $2,200, with only $2,175 for the next one. Inside Broadway lots brought an average price of $2,500. In 1878 the corner was sold for $165,000, and several years later the late Col. John Jacob Astor bought it for $670,000. The land assessment is now $2,000,000.

In 1875, St. Luke's Lutheran Church bought its plot in the north side of Forty-second Street for $45,000. It is now one of the few unimproved plots in the block and is being held at $500,000. When Asa B. Candler, in 1912, purchased the old Central Baptist Church plot in the south side of Forty-second Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, for the Candler Building, he paid for the seventy-eight-foot frontage $425,000.

In 1910, Frederick G. Bourne bought the old West Presbyterian Church, opposite Bryant Park, for $1,100,000. The Aeolian Building now occupies the plot. In February, 1912, the old Spalding Building brought $700,000, about $131 a square foot, when land was wanted for Stern's new store.

Such has been the realty growth of the Times Square district in the last 14 years, and, if values increase at the same rate for the next thirteen years, rentals must reach a figure as yet undreamed of even in these times of rising prices.

Why Wilson Was Balked

IN yesterday's article in this column dealing with the array of forces for and against the ratification of the peace treaty and the League of Nations by the United States Senate, incidental mention was made of one fact that must be borne in mind as having been of great weight in determining the course of events at the peace conference. It was pointed out that the Tory elements who are now fighting the acceptance of the League of Nations had previously opposed President Wilson's whole idealistic program as summed up in the Fourteen Points and similar declarations and have abandoned that opposition only because the program has already been defeated. And one of the principal reasons why the program was defeated at the peace conference was just that division in America and the determined and often unscrupulous efforts made by some Americans to undermine President Wilson's position in Paris. In extenuation of President Wilson's apparent compromising with his own declarations and Europe's apparent failure to keep faith with its pre-armistice acceptance of Wilson's principles that fact must be recognised.

Had Woodrow Wilson been able to go before the peace delegates gathered at Paris and say to them, "I come to speak the voice of 100,000,000 united Americans. We have offered our all to gain this victory over an enemy of civilisation—the blood of 300,000 of our youth, our money, our resources and our food. Now that the enemy has been conquered we offer you yet our money, our resources and our food to help build up a wasted Europe, and our blood and treasure whenever necessary to maintain peace, so that Europe may not be laid waste again by some other barbarous invader. We have offered all in this war not because we had any concern with European quarrels but because the interests of humanity were at stake. And the peace that now is to be signed must be such as to transcend selfish national interests and represent only the highest interests of humanity. Only that kind of a peace will America agree to guarantee in the future and only that kind of a peace will America agree to sign now. If there be any other kind our delegation withdraws from this conference, our troops withdraw from Europe and we resume our isolation as from the day of our founding, to carry on our own political traditions as we always have, free from the entanglements and coalitions of Europe"—had Woodrow Wilson been able to say that, the diplomats of Paris would have been more hesitant to write a peace of the old diplomacy, and Mr. Wilson would not have been so cynically flouted for the realisation of their own secret treaties.

But he was not able to say that. No sooner had he left his own shores than a flood of propaganda was let loose behind him to weaken him. His announced program was jeered at and criticised. His political enemies declared publicly that he did not represent America. Interviews were given out for use in Europe advising the other conferees to disregard him. A lobby was planted in Paris to deny every assertion he made, to oppose every proposal he offered. Every effort was made to convince European public opinion that he was speaking only for himself, and not the American people, which was untrue. Americans, Americans of high position, fashioned the weapons for the use of Europe's imperialists to fight America's peace delegation. And Europe's imperialists used them to effect. Every student of the European press observed closely how all American statements opposed to Wilson were printed conspicuously, and all American statements favoring Wilson ignored or minimised. And President Wilson before half his stay was over, before the peace conference had even approached the main issues, was weakened, discounted and discredited.

So he was defeated. And in his defeat all America was defeated, all America's historic political ideals and traditions, and more than America, the hopes of the peoples of Europe. For whatever apologists may say, Woodrow Wilson was the medium of expression of the inarticulate masses of Europe as well as America and it was to him and not to their own statesmen, grooved in the old traditions, that they looked for security against the repetition of the sufferings they had just endured. And it was Woodrow Wilson's voice and the vision it expressed that during the last two years of the war steeled the war-weary masses of Europe to go through with their suffering, it was his voice that calmed the threatening discontent of the restless and muttering labor elements of England and France and Italy, for it held out to them a promise greater than victory, a promise that their sons would be spared their suffering. And it was Woodrow Wilson's voice therefore that had an integral part in the victory as much as the men and the guns and the strategy. And when Woodrow Wilson came to make concrete what his words had promised, he found himself sniped at every turn. And by Americans as well as Europeans, by the imperialists among his own countrymen who gave ammunition to European imperialists and made common cause with them for their own common interests. And that fact is full with shame and bitterness for every American who calls himself a liberal and a progressive.

Nationalism In The Argentine

(Saturday Review, London)

Grave concern is expressed in commercial circles here—and with very good reason—over the politico-social upheaval in the Argentine Republic at this time. That man of mystery, President Hipolito Irigoyen—a curt and icy Radical, with another four years of office—his long manifested anti-British (and anti-American) tendencies; he has even aspired to form a "spiritual alliance," of hostile cast, with Chili, Paraguay and Mexico as his partners.

No one needs reminding of Argentina's enormous pastoral wealth. Her metropolis has a population of over a million and a half. Extravagant shops of the Calle Florida rival those of Bond Street, or the Rue de la Paix; a leading newspaper of the capital—La Prensa—is housed in a palace of the Avenida de Mayo that cost £300,000. Today a profound change is perceptible in the national spirit of Argentina. Reviewing her marvellous riches long ago, President Mitre asked: "What is the force at the back of our progress?. . . . Senores, it is British capital."

But the governing classes have now a decidedly Socialist tinge, thanks to the influx of immigrants from Barcelona and revolutionary Italian centers. Propaganda of the "proletarian" type was conducted all through the war, when opinion in the Republic was passionately divided. This the Argentine Minister in Washington (Senor Romulo Naon) resigned his post as a protest against President Irigoyen's obstinate neutrality, even in the face of cynical outrage like that of Karl von Luxburg of Spurlos versenkt notoriety.

Disastrous strikes have lately paralysed British-owned industries. The hoardings of Buenos Aires were plastered with placards denouncing the "tyranny" of our Black List; and papers like La Union and the Tageblatt attributed to our malign maneuvers the high prices of food, coal and clothing. There were serious agrarian troubles, there were furious riots, with many killed and injured. A dock-dispute in the capital crippled industry for three months, and diverted shipping to Montevideo, and even as far afield as Rio.

Then the Government and Allied representatives were at loggerheads; and this caused further stagnation in the cereal markets. Argentina, as everybody knows, is one of the granaries of the world. For three weeks, 120,000 railwaymen struck work; so did other trades and callings, from the taxi-driver to the baker. The main streets of the metropolis were littered with leaflets denouncing British "capitalistic" intrigues. Thus it was British capital that oppressed the humble Argentino. It robbed the nation of its dividends; it subsidised the press, and did its utmost to drive the Government into war with Germany.

How fortunate it was that citizens had at the helm of State an inflexible patriot like Hipolito Irigoyen—a six-year despot, vested with the veto power, and able to appoint or remove his Cabinet at will, on Wilsonian lines. So the huge city of Buenos Aires, obscurely fermenting with protest, was soon cut off from all communication with the interior, save by motor-car—and that only at the caprice of Bolshevist hordes; Government trains were derailed, and British merchants drove home from the office with revolvers on the seat beside them.

Now, it is all very well to attribute much of this trouble to German efforts. There are tens of thousands of Germans in Argentina, and German capital to the extent of £60,000,000 is invested in the country. But the prime cause of this social surge lies deeper. "The France of the Revolution," says Professor Pacifico Otero, "is the political Sinai of Argentina. The thirst for justice is evident above all, and our hatred of tyranny, privilege and social inequality."

Hence, no doubt, the new railway policy of the Executive, expressed in the Chamber of Deputies by Senor Zaccagnini in July, 1917. Increasing sections of the population are now confusedly embittered against great foreign-owned enterprises; and the tendency is for a "popular" Government to champion the cause of Labor against Capital. Professor Otero tries to analyse the tide of sentiment which impels so cosmopolitan a nation as Argentina, and he finds a new and eager flame of feeling against mere "materialistic" considerations.

We are bound to say that this new elan is more than awkward for us, in a land so largely sustained by British money; the Argentine has, indeed, been styled our "financial colony." In normal times, our total trade with this Republic exceeded that with all the other States of Latin-America combined; the amount was nearly £50,000,000 a year. Today British interests in the Argentine are between two fires. There are ever-increasing crises, due to the turbulent demands of cosmopolitan employes: Italian labor inclines to the settemana Inglese with its comfortable trend towards a "no-hour day."

Then Provincial authorities show an ominous inclination to "milk" all the prosperous foreign-owned concerns. In this connection, we counsel British traders to compare the high-handed action of the mother-country, which is Spain. For the Hispano-American rapprochement is one of the most significant (and obscure) portents of a very peculiar situation.

Not long ago a British motor-felucca of the Tobacco Company was arrested near Gibraltar by a Spanish armed crew. The vessel was taken into Malaga, her cargo confiscated and her crew imprisoned in filthy latrines for thirty-two hours. At the secret inquiry, our Consul was excluded, and the protests of our Ambassador wholly disregarded. It is clear that Spain also intends to bleed foreign-owned interests, as never before.

Large increases are proposed by Members of the Cortes in the taxation of iron and pyrite mines. Other enterprises, after half a century of fair dealing, are advised that their status is being re-considered, with a view to the reassessment of taxes, amounting in many cases to several hundred percent. This example is being followed in Argentina, where Hispano-American ties, favored by the Vatican and by clericals in both Continents, have grown extraordinarily close during the great war.

There is talk of King Alfonso visiting Buenos Aires this year. The Spanish element is now dominant; this is partly due to the departure of British, Italian and other Allied settlers and employes. Argentina's ideal is the triumph of Hispanism, with the mother-country and her ancient culture as a purely spiritual nexus, in forming a new democratic alliance between daughter nations that were long ago cut adrift.

A new hostility to Brazil, as an unwieldy upstart and outsider, is a feature of this remarkable movement in Argentine nationalism. It is well to be mindful of incalculable elements, such as the astonishing flame which swept the Italian people over the Adriatic question. Signor Orlando reminds us that these human problems—"so infinitely complex," are not to be simply determined by the business rule-of-thumb.

The United States is aware of this; and her Pan-American Union in Washington, of which Mr. Lansing is chairman ex officio, mixes a good deal of sentiment with its "materialistic" activities. The result is an increase of trade, in four years of the war, which Director Barrett puts at no less than $900,000,000. Argentina's commerce with her northern sister in 1913 was $84,727,000. By 1917 the figure had leapt to $229,354,000.

The U.S. Shipping Board is about to place twenty-two 12,000-ton freight and passenger steamers on the South American service; and each state-room will have two beds and a bath. Washington has far-reaching designs upon trade in the Empty Continent. Yet Argentina remains uneasy and resentful, with a marked bias against the Anglo-Saxon, which London commercial circles frankly admit they do not understand.

A typical case is that of the Primitiva Gas Company, which lights the city of Buenos Aires, and has over 1,138 miles of mains. No dividends have been paid since 1914. The municipality owes this English company £143,000, and thus far a settlement has been impossible—though the chairman has gone out in the hope of putting matters right.

"The Old World," says Jose Pacifico Otero of Buenos Aires, "has desired to know the trend to Latin-American sympathy and thought." . . . "And to its questions," the professor pursues, with oracular magniloquence, "we now reply: 'Re-read our history. Observe our psychology; note how our political ideals were born, and you will find the answer obvious.'" Britons with large interests in the Argentina are today reading and pondering these matters very deeply indeed—with grave misgiving and lively alarm over the new complexion of Latin-American affairs.

A Changed Wilson

By Frederick Moore
(New York Tribune)

Paris, June 6.—There has taken place a great change in the President of the United States.

One of the signs is his break with those youthful, radical parlor Bolshevists with whom he surrounded himself at the Crillon, whom he used as eyes and ears in Russia, and whose opinions undoubtedly did for a long time sway his feelings. They told him the League of Nations could not be successful until there had been revolutions in France, Great Britain and Italy and predicted the Socialists would overturn the governments of those countries in a few months. They drew him to the point of a breach with the Allied statesmen. At last he was unwilling to break relations and risk a separate peace, as some of them openly advocated.

The change that has come over the President is signified also in the terms of the peace treaty, whose severity satisfies the most practical men.

The change is finally sealed by the new attitude regarding Russia. He still appears to be unwilling to accept the advice of men like Clemenceau and Lord Robert Cecil, who long have been arguing that peace in Europe is impossible and Germany can yet win the war unless Russian conditions are stabilised. But he has discarded Bullitt and Steffens.

It has been a gigantic political struggle the complete history of which never will be written, but one that, on broad lines and with the limited knowledge available, I will present in brief outline.

How the President agreed to the treaty terms contrary to all radical conception of his ideas—winning much American approval, and at the same time alienating the sympathy of many of his Hotel Crillon followers—ought to interest Americans generally and the Senate in particular at this moment when the latter's action or failure to act may cause vital alterations or, on the other hand, adherence to the drafted treaty, the signature of which undoubtedly is permitted to be delayed by Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd George, among other reasons, to ascertain the opinions of their respective countries thereon.

Dissatisfaction among the Crillon staff of course is due to the fact that it was not representatively American, but was chosen largely from writers with radical predilections and college professors, many of them notably able in scholastic work, but understanding international affairs only in an academic sense. The Crillon staff have been in varying degrees of loyalty disciples of the Wilsonian theories, who, like their leader, were more inclined to blame the Allied statesmen for failings than to credit them for achievements in difficult international relations, and who, in ignorance and inexperience with the tasks of diplomatists hitherto, have regarded Europeans with unfair as well as fair suspicions.

It is now, therefore, as if the prophet had betrayed his teachings too suddenly for his disciples to change beliefs which in their loyalty they ardently advocated up to a few weeks ago in the committees and commissions of which they were members.

The peak of Mr. Wilson's resistance was touched when he threatened to leave France. Colonel House deplored this maneuver, and endeavored to excuse his chief by saying that every man in and around the council of four was nerve-wracked with the strain of overwork. When the President found that his ultimatum failed to wring further concessions from Clemenceau and Lloyd George he began the capitulations now denounced by the hot-headed radicals of the Crillon party.

Bullitt says, and many Crillonites believe, that Mr. Wilson had the choice whether to save the league of nations by capitulation or break with the Allies and plunge Europe into greater disorder and prevent a consummation of the league while petty wars continue and new conflicts germinate.

While agreeing to the minimum terms of the Allies there are several evidences besides the alterations made in the covenant that President Wilson now realises the need of the support of Congress in saving the League of Nations and making it vital, which America alone can accomplish or defeat.

Following are some of the points on which the President made his principal capitulation:

1. Reparations. President Wilson originally sought to make Germany answerable only for actual illegal damage done during the war, and not for any war costs. He was against indemnifications for pensions and—I believe this last to be correct—for loss of life due to the operations of submarines. He fought hard against British insistence that Germany accept responsibility for full costs even if, as Mr. Wilson contended, she was unable to pay them.

2. Trial of Kaiser. The President's view was that the head of a state was merely executive and answerable only to his own people.

3. Responsibilities. Mr. Wilson argued the legal difficulties against bringing home atrocities to the Germans.

4. Military guarantees. He contended that the abolition of conscription in Germany and other features of her disarmament, with the League of Nations, would give France ample security on the Rhine front. Mr. Wilson finally compromised by promising Clemenceau to propose to the American Congress an agreement with Great Britain in pledging the security of the French frontiers.

5. Mandates. The President desired a much narrower interpretation and limitations in order to gi[ve] League of Nations a more p[owerful]

Origin Of Depth Bombs

Rear Admiral William R. Sims, who will become head of the War college at Newport, in an interview told for the first time how the now famous depth bomb, popularly known in the navy as the "ash can," came to be invented. Much has been published about this efficient engine of destruction which accounted for so many of the German undersea craft but this story told Admiral Sims by Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa, formerly chief of the Grand Fleet of Britain, is the first account of the origination of the depth bomb idea.

"The bomb is of such simple construction and fills such an obvious need," said Admiral Sims, "that if it had not been invented at the period it was it must surely have come to light within a few months of that time.

"It was first thought of at the Admiralty, according to Lord Jellicoe, when Admiral Madden, second in command of the British fleet, called for some such device after an encounter that a cruiser he was aboard had with a submarine. The German rose suddenly close to the cruiser and launched a torpedo at her from short range. This, fortunately, missed, and the cruiser was swung about and rushed toward the enemy at full speed in an endeavor to ram it. However, the German commander got his craft under water in time to save her, but as the British ship went over him the officers leaning over the side could distinctly make out its outlines at some distance below the surface.

"Chagrined by the escape, one of Admiral Madden's officers remarked that they would have gotten their prey if they had had a mine to drop over the side as they passed above her.

"'Why can't we have something of that sort,' replied the admiral; and immediately forwarded the suggestion to the Admiralty offices asking that experts be put at work on the task of preparing specifications.

"Out of this episode," concluded Admiral Sims, "was developed the 'ash can' loaded with TNT, with the aid of which a few destroyers were enabled to protect great convoys and terrorise the Hun undersea force. The depth bomb and the destroyer became the chief naval factors of the struggle."—New York Herald.

Resting And Working

By Brice Belden, M. D.

Men live by work, play, love and worship. By the judicious fusing of these things life's elements are woven into something worth while.

We court undue fatigue when such fusion is not taken proper account of. Fatigue may be carried to the point of exhaustion, after which destructive and disintegrative effects follow.

Fatigue may be compensated for or avoided by certain restorative measures. Play, substitute, work or a hobby will enable us to strike a rational balance.

Fatigue may become persistent unless due regard is given to offsetting measures. Chronic fatigue gives rise to disturbances of function, and the victim finds that he cannot sleep well or digest his food properly, and that he has a sense of goneness, tremblings and breathlessness. He's "all in" after slight exertion.

Some people have a mania for keeping on the go long after rebellious nature has given the danger signals. These warnings should suggest a variation in their monotonous toil. They don't seem to know that a vacation can be had in a thousand excellent ways while still on the job. Their routine needs to be broken.

Chronic fatigue affects badly the moral and mental faculties, and general deterioration ensues. Fatigue decadence is understood by many large employers of labor nowadays, and systematic economies as regards human energy are coming to be practised by them.

The great discovery has been made that it pays well to regard and conserve the comfort, health and happiness of the workingman.

A man is a human being and not a mere mechanism, and employers are being forced to realise the horrors and perils of monotonous toil for the workers.

We should take as an example the beat of the heart. It never stops, but does pause. Between the push and pull of the heart there is a tiny interval during which the organ rests.

When you lie down, when you take a short nap, when you read a paper or book, when you go to bed early, when you listen to a lecture or good music, when you make a week-end change, when you take a vacation, when you omit the stress of fixed attention, when you visit, when you play, when you go to church, you are doing for your general organism what your heart does between its beats, and then you can go on playing the game of life successfully, just as the heart justifies its loyalty in and to the scheme of things.

Bringing Back The Past

"It is possible to bring back to memory long forgotten events of the days of early childhood," declares a leading professor of King's College, London.

In a laboratory of the college in the Strand, works and lectures Dr. William Brown, one of the most remarkable of the younger generation of medical men. His series of lectures at the college on pathological psychology has attracted wide attention.

Dr. Brown is a sparsely-built man, with a wealth of fair hair and a pair of large sunken blue eyes. The things he has done include:

Bringing back lost memories.
Reincarnating childhood days in a patient.
Analysing and tracking down the sources of dreadful dreams.
Curing functional paralysis.
Causing a dumb man to talk.
Making the blind to see, the deaf to hear, and the shattered mind normal in shock cases.

But probably the most interesting part of his work, which is done with the aid of hypnosis, is that of searching among buried memories. His work is not hocuspocus or theatrical, but is based on original thinking and a unique war experience. At the front 4,000 cases passed through his hands at a neurological center.

"Take the case of a man mute from shock," he says. "I place him on a couch lightly, and gradually hypnotise him. I then tell him that the moment I put my hand on his forehead he will seem to be again in the fighting, and will live again through his experiences. He immediately begins to twist and turn on the couch, and shouts in a terror-stricken voice. . . . He really lives again through that awful time. This process of working off 'repressed emotion' is called abreaction.

"Deaf and dumb cases are much easier to cure than stammering, and for insomnia I apply auto-suggestion.

"People are right when they think that the cause of dreams is often salmon and cucumber," laughed Dr. Brown; "but that does not account for the form the dream takes. The dreams of some patients are so terrifying that they have to be exorcised."

The dream-detective explained: "I remove dream effects by finding out their origin first. A patient came to me the other day stating that he was continually terrorised by the same dream—that of one man stabbing another, and then turning on the dreamer. At this point the dreamer always awoke. I traced that dream down to a melodrama the patient saw when he was 13 years old.

"Lost memories are due to many causes, but under my treatment I have succeeded in bringing back to a man the memory of events that happened when he was only three years old.

"Another case was that of a man who remembered his earliest birthdays, and even recalled being taken up in his father's arms when only 18 months old, when he felt the roughness of his unshaven beard against his face."

Touching on the lighter possibilities of these marvelous results, Dr. Brown, who has a keen sense of humor, said that during the war the idea was seriously put to him that the statements of men who had "swung the lead" on leave could be tested, and another proposition was to extract intelligence from German prisoners.

"How would you describe this case?" I could not forbear asking. "A gentleman well known in Fleet Street for borrowing small pieces of silver, invariably, when taxed by his creditors, has lost all memory of the transaction. His mind seems to have become a blank."

"Psychoneuroses, perhaps," laughed Dr. Brown—"shattered memory, following sudden shock of humiliation."

"There is also the case, doctor, of the man who took three umbrellas from my hall stand. Do you think——"

"Abreaction would be no good there."

WORLD LEAGUE FORMED TO FIGHT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Extension Of Prohibition To All Nations Planned At Temperance Convention

Washington, June 6.—With a view to carrying prohibition to all parts of the world, temperance workers assembled here for the annual national convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America organised the World's League Against Alcoholism.

Four presidents for the new organisation were elected, as follows: Lief Jones, London, England; Dr. Robert Hercod, secretary of the International Temperance Bureau, Lausanne, Switzerland; Dr. Howard H. Russell, Westerville, Ohio, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, and Emil Vanderveide, Brussels, Belgium. Ernest H. Sherrington, of Westerville, Ohio, was elected general secretary, and instructed to open permanent offices for the body in Washington. Miles Vokes, of Toronto, was chosen treasurer.

Countries expected to be represented in the league were said to be Canada, Mexico, Japan, Scotland, Ireland, England, France, Belgium, Denmark, Switzerland, Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy and the United States. Under terms of a constitution adopted, meetings of the league will be once in three years, the first coming probably next October in Washington.

Delegates to the Anti-Saloon League Convention adjourned their sessions tonight, after passing resolutions in support of a world campaign against liquor and against proposals to relax wartime prohibition enactments.

Names Commercial Uses Of Airplanes

Wide Field Of Usefulness Predicted For Planes Now On Hand After War

One of the most important and one of the first commercial developments in aeronautics no doubt will be its use for aerial photography, giving both plan views of cities, factories, shore lines, and docks, as well as oblique views which give the perspective and the "bird's-eye" view which usually convey so much more than an ordinary surface photograph, say Allan R. Hawley in the Outlook.

The forestry commission of New York State has already arranged for taking photographs of the Adirondack Mountains, thus giving it detailed information which it could obtain in no other way and covering regions almost impassable by any other mode of locomotion. In the great Western forests special timber can be located, such as trees suitable for great masts of ships; fire areas, swamp areas, and the condition of growth can be easily and clearly seen.

The second Pan-American Aeronautic Convention, held at Atlantic City under the auspices of the Aero Club of America and the Aerial League of America, brought out many new phases of the commercial side of this large subject, and chief among them were the interesting developments in the possibilities of the aerial mail service, which has been in operation more than one year between New York and Washington and which has carried more than two hundred thousand pounds of mail, representing 8 million letters, with absolute regularity. The same six planes, equipped with the same engines which were used a year ago, are still in service.

New York Has Air Police

The recently formed aerial police of New York City is another indication of the importance of aeronautics in civil life. They are under the guidance of Col. Jefferson De Mont Thompson, Maj. S. Herbert Mapes and Maj. Granville A. Pollock, and a splendid and efficient aerial police corps has been formed in which are many aces of the American Air Force.

One of the first of the duties of this newly formed force will be to photograph the entire city thoroughly, upon a scale which will show every detail more accurately than can be revealed in any other way. Landing fields have been secured and facilities for patrolling the city, locating fires, preventing civil aviators from jeopardising the safety of inhabitants, and patrolling the river, and the squadrons are prepared to respond at an instant's notice to any emergency which may arise. Other cities will soon follow the lead of New York. Newspapers will no doubt be the next to avail themselves of the news gathering abilities of fast scout flying planes, while sightseeing buses will follow, and transportation lines in the due course of development.
